HOW THE ESPP WORKS

How does an ESPP work?

You elect to have a certain amount deducted from your paycheck on a before-tax basis. These contributions are collected during a timeframe known as the offering period. At the end of the offering period, your contributions are used to purchase Company shares on what is known as the purchase date. Once purchased, you have the option to hold the shares with Computershare, transfer them to a brokerage account, or sell them.

What is the offering period?

The offering period is the period of time when employee contributions are collected through automatic payroll deductions on an after-tax basis.

What is the purchase date?

The purchase date is the last business day or trading day of the offering period. On this day, all contributions collected throughout the offering period are used to purchase company shares.

What is the Purchase Price?

The purchase price is determined by the fair market value price of the company stock on the purchase date.

The Ephrata National Bank ESPP offers a 15% discount on the purchase price. This means the actual purchase price is 85% of fair market value price on the purchase date.

What is a fair market value price?
